Bridgette Campbell is a native of Valdosta, Ga. She graduated from Valdosta State College with a degree in Political Science in 1982. She then continued her education at the University of Georgia, where she graduated with a degree in Management Information Systems in 1986. She then attended the University of Akron School of Law, where she received her law degree in 1989.

During law school, Bridgette Campbell worked as a law clerk for the Legal Affairs Department at the University of Akron. After the Bar, Campbell accepted a position as an Assistant Solicitor with the Cobb County Solicitor General’s Office in Marietta, Ga. After working for seven years in the Solicitor’s Office, she left the office to go into private practice with the law firm that later became Cook, Pugh, & Barrett in Marietta.

On October 26, 2000, Campbell was sworn in by the Honorable Roy Barnes as a State Court Judge of Cobb County, Division II, and is the first African American appointed to the bench in Cobb County. She attends Simpson Street Church of Christ of Atlanta, Ga. She enjoys reading, spending time with her children, long walks on the beach at Tybee Island and her membership at the Tennessee Aquarium.

Campbell is married with two children: Zachary, age 18, and Kathryn Jacobie, age 15. Her husband, Wayne Glover, is an Electrical Engineer from the finest school in the country, Georgia Institute of Technology.